Investor AB:
Coordinating of New Investments
From New York Instead of London

From the beginning of next year, management of the new investments area in Investor AB will shift to New York, where Investor's activities will be expanded.

Börje Ekholm, who directs new investments activities from the office in London, will be relocating to New York. Some other staff members will also be relocating. As a result of this activities in London will be run with fewer employees than at present.

The aim of this change is to achieve greater geographic proximity with the principal investments that are being considered today, as well as to be better able to follow those sectors that Investor is prioritizing as far as new investments are concerned.
